

<http://brooklyn.news12.com/news/brooklyn-based-puppetry-arts-aims-to-help-lgbt-youth-with-theater-project-1.7390159>

Brooklyn-based Puppetry Arts aims to help LGBT youth with theater project

Organizers hope to open a dialogue about bullying and teen suicide in the LGBT community.

March 14, 2014

A Brooklyn-based arts organization is putting the final touches on a theater project that examines bullying and suicide among LGBT youth.

Puppetry Arts held a table reading of the musical Anthropomorphic in Park Slope Thursday. The show uses performers in puppet masks to tell the story of a young man who takes his life and finds himself in purgatory.

Organizers say they hope to open a dialogue that will help LGBT teens with the issues they face.

They're also trying to raise enough money to perform in local theaters.

< back to article

BEST CARS
USNews
FOR THE MONEY
2013

America's Favorite Brand***

EDGE

Click to learn more ▶

Ford
Go Further

*Based on 2012 CY Sales Visit Your Tri-State Ford Dealer

advertisement | advertise on News 12